Joe Dirt is a 2001 American adventure comedy film starring David Spade, Dennis Miller, Christopher Walken, Adam Beach, Brian Thome, Sullivan, and Kid Rock. The film was written by Spade and Fred Wolf, and produced by Robert Simonds. The plot concerns a "white trash" loser who is a failure, an antihero. As he travels in search of his parents, his fine qualities are increasingly revealed. He ends up with a family that helps and who respect him. Critical reception was mostly negative, but the film was a modest financial success. A sequel, Joe Dirt 2, was released on DVD and Blu-ray on November 16, 2015. Joe Dirt is the janitor at a Los Angeles radio station. A producer drags him into the studio to talk live on the air with famous people. Joe tells his life story. As a baby he had a mullet wig installed because the top of his skull had never formed. At age 8, he was left behind by his mother. He does not know his real surname. After growing up in a series of foster homes and travelling on the road as a kid while camping, he ends up in a small town in the Pacific Northwest, where he met the beautiful Brandy and her dog, Charlie, and became a target for jealousy from Rick.

Mr. Money Mustache is the website and pseudonym of 44-year-old, Canadian-born blogger Peter Adeney. Adeney retired from his job in 2005, spending only a small percentage of his annual salary and consistently investing the remainder, primarily in stock market index funds. He contends that most middle-class individuals can and should spend less money and own fewer physical possessions, and that this leads to greater happiness as well as a decreased environmental footprint as a result. He has described the typical middle-class lifestyle as "an addiction to spending," citing the overuse of and overspending on new cars as an example. The blog has been featured and cited in various media outlets, including The New Yorker, as well as others. The primary aspect of the blog which has caught the attention of many media outlets is Pete Adeney's lifestyle. Adeney and his wife both worked in software engineering, averaging an income of approximately $6,700 per year, per person, over the years, and investing the majority of their take-home pay during their working years. At the time of their retirement, they had amassed approximately $600,000, a mortgage-free house valued at about $200,000. Adeney believes in the 4 percent rule, which states that, with a balanced investment portfolio, one can withdraw 4 percent of his or her portfolio's initial value each year, adjusted upward for inflation each year thereafter, with a low probability of ever running out of money. Adeney's initial investment portfolio of $600,000 at the time of his retirement, which could support his family's annual expenditures of about $25,000 indefinitely according to the 4 percent rule, has grown to over $1,000,000 from his initial investment portfolio since his retirement in 2005, through the blog and other sources of income, but he maintains Among Wonder's works are singles such as "Signed, Sealed, Delivered I'm Yours", "Superstition", "Sir Duke", "You Are the Sunshine of My Life", and "I Wanna Dance with Somebody"; and albums such as Talking Book, Innervisions, and Songs in the Key of Life. He is also known as an activist for political causes, including his 1980 campaign to make Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday a holiday in the United States and his 1985 campaign to make the United Nations Messenger of Peace. In 2013, Billboard magazine released a list of the Billboard Hot 100 All-Time Top Artists to celebrate the magazine's 50th anniversary, with Wonder at number six.

The primary aspect of the blog which has caught the attention of many is the concept of extremely early retirement at age 30. Adeney and his wife both worked in software engineering, averaging approximately $100,000 per year, per person, over the course of their careers. They lived frugally, investing the majority of their take-home pay. At the time of their retirement, they had amassed approximately $600,000 in investments in addition to a mortgage of approximately $200,000. Adeney believes in the 4 percent rule, which states that, with a balanced investment portfolio, a retiree can withdraw 4 percent of her portfolio's initial value each year, adjusted upward for inflation each year thereafter, with a low probability of running out of money.

Mr. Money Mustache is the website and pseudonym of 44-year-old, Canadian-born blogger Peter Adeney, who retired from his job as a software engineer in 2005 at age 30 by spending only a small percentage of his annual salary and consistently investing in low-cost, diversified market index funds. Adeney lives in Longmont, Colorado, and contends that most middle-class individuals can live on less by owning fewer physical possessions, and that they can live with increased financial freedom and happiness and a smaller carbon footprint as a result. He has described the typical middle-class lifestyle as "an exploding volcano of waste" due to the overuse of and overspending on new cars as an example. The blog has been featured and cited in various media outlets, including CBS News, and The New Yorker, as well as others. Vulfpeck is an American funk group founded in 2011. Influenced by rhythm sections of the past, the band released their first full-length album on Spotify titled Sleepify – royalties from which funded the band's admission-free tour in 2017. Their second album, Climber, will be released in December 2018. The band members attended University of Michigan's music school. In an interview with German producer Reinhold Mack, band founder Jack Stratton conceived of Vulfpeck as an all-star band of session musicians of the 1960s such as Funk Brothers, Wrecking Crew, and Muscle Shoals. The idea was to create a rhythm section. The band's founding members are Jack Stratton on keyboards, drums and guitar, Theo Katzman on keyboards, and Joe Dart on bass. Financial independence is a state in which an individual or household has sufficient income to live without having to depend on income from some form of employment. Financial independence can be achieved by having assets that generate income (cash flow) that is at least equal to their expenses. Earning income without having to work a job is commonly referred to as "passive income." For example, if someone receives $5000 in dividends from stocks they own, but their expenses are $5000, they can live on their dividend income because it pays for all their expenses to live. In these circumstances, a person is financially independent. A person's assets are an important factor in determining if they have achieved financial independence. Assets are items of value that can be readily turned into cash (liquidated) if a person has no other source of income. Liability is a responsibility to provide compensation. (Homes and automobiles are common assets.) Age and existing wealth or current salary can generate enough income to meet their needs from sources other than employment.

While he has played banjo, he has included music in his comedy routines from the beginning of his professional career. In 2001 (producing 'slave-free' chocolate from 2005 on), he decided to take action against his hands by recording himself eating 17 bars of chocolate and subsequently being charged for "knowingly purchasing an illegally manufactured product". To make a statement, he convinced four former cocoa plantation child slaves from Ivory Coast to sue the company. In 2007, the Dutch attorney general had the case dismissed for being out of scope.
